AH Named CAE Provider by ASAE, the Center for Association Leadership

AH now certified to review and approve programs that meet CAE requirements

MOUNT LAUREL, NJ – August 3, 2015 – AH, a professional-services firm that specializes in helping non-profit organizations achieve their mission, create value, and advance their causes, industries, and profession, has been named a Certified Account Executive (CAE) Provider by the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE). AH can now determine the appropriate standards to ensure that all course offerings will be accepted for CAE credit.

“Becoming a CAE Approved Provider reflects AH’s commitment to providing education that helps individuals earn or maintain the Certified Association Executive Credential,” said AH CEO Robert Waller, Jr., CAE. “As an Approved Provider, we will adhere to the high standards of the ASAE to ensure that all of our course offerings will be accepted for CAE credit, an example of our excellence in association management education.”

A CAE Approved Provider is an organization which has formally registered with the CAE Program and committed to providing education that meets the CAE Commission’s standards for helping individuals earn or maintain the Certified Association Executive credential.

CAE Approved Providers have received guidance on such standards, and pledged to properly represent course eligibility for CAE credit. When selecting a CAE eligible courses from a CAE Approved Provider, candidates and certificate holders can have confidence that the courses will be recognized for CAE credit as advertised. The CAE Program encourages candidates and CAEs to consider qualifying courses from CAE Approved Providers to meet the professional development requirements to earn or maintain the CAE credential.

In addition to being a CAE Provider, AH is also proud to hold the title of first partner licensed to deliver the ASAE Certificate Program in Association Management. AH is licensed to deliver the program in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland.
